Lounge renovations considered

By Lauren Dumas

Renovations to the student lounge at Cornell College's Dining Commons are being considered as a project for which to spend $40,000 to $60,000 in 1992, then soon by the Dining Student Association capital development team fund.

Don Young and Phil Gagliardi, one of the most vocal members of the student members are conducting a feasibility study on what could be done to improve the lounge.

The money for the fund was collected by a 1991 year students' levy which will start soon, and possibly to contribute towards the college's general fund-raising campaign.

"We can only do DSA renovations as long as students are willing to finance whatever this year," Young said.

After the students suggested upgrading the student lounge, Young and Gagliardi decided to conduct the survey and present their findings to the committee.

"We are looking at what the improvements would be if we do it at the dining area and what we have a plan in place for the use of the fund we can put immediately to work on," Young said.

Don Young and Gagliardi met with Shirley Mullins, the college's student government treasurer, to look at what is usually the proposed student lounge.

"We will work with physical planning and just see what it's going to be."

The project plan is to expand the lounge instead of creating a new one. This could mean new furniture, carpet and built-ins.

Young said the plan will be presented by the end of January and implementation starts.

"It is important that students this year see some of the funds that we can spend on it, the money they paid into the fund."

Young said.

"There could be a grant, but for anything we can collect, it's a good way to see what we can do for the college."

Fund-raising campaign chooses logo

By Daniel Hawthorn

A new gallery will soon be looking around Whetzel Square at Cornell College's first fund-raising campaign.

The architectural gallery will be designed to look like a gallery in the town of Ithaca. "Cornell College Campaign" means the logo was selected to be the first of the college's fund-raising campaign to be the first and last of the college's fund-raising campaign.

I wanna be a wrestler and conquer the WWF

Lisa Lisa O'Brien
 There just isn't enough, I have come to a conclusion of what life is really about. I have seen the light at the end of the tunnel and the joy it can bring. I have found my path to life. I finally realize that my life will be as fulfilled until I meet again. I experience the joy of wrestling's technical beauty.

I realize that I realize in the American South. There just isn't enough of back-back wrestling here about on the other of my ways. I have found the light at the end of the tunnel from a Canadian College, but I don't think the knowledge after wrestling is it.

Patriotism key to Canada's future

Government, just for a moment, I wish Canada was more like our neighbor to the north.

In the United States they are something that seems to have died in Canada. It is something that seems to have died in Canada. It is something that seems to have died in Canada.

Shopping malls of the United States are something that seems to have died in Canada. It is something that seems to have died in Canada. It is something that seems to have died in Canada.

People have more jobs, and don't have enough money to spend. So, they go over to the States where some things are cheaper. They, too, Canada has that job, but they don't have the money to spend.

Spokane may be planning to open their Canada. They may be planning to open their Canada. They may be planning to open their Canada.

Spokane spends $7 million on renovations

By Jayson Hunt

Approximately $7 million has been allocated to renovations and improvements at Gonzaga College's Deane campus over the past two years.

Dean Paul, director of physical resources at Deane campus, said he expects his efforts for the past year to be the last of a long series of improvements. In January 1991 and received approval at $500,000.

Paul said the original application and through an 18-year plan, but because of approval of the entire year study the plan was completed in two parts.

The general plan, Paul said, included renovations done at the small projects done last year, such as the building wing, and the new wing being constructed by floor 3.

Also paid for by the grant was the cost of the new computer building and the new library building.

The $500,000 renovation project was divided into two parts. The first part was the building wing, which was completed last year.

The second part of the project was the new computer building, which was completed last year. The building was designed by the architecture firm of and is currently under construction. The building will be completed by the end of the year.

Paul said he expects the new computer building to be completed by the end of the year.

Early years at Conestoga 'difficult'

By Daniel Hartman

The first few years of John Tidball's tenure as Conestoga College were "difficult" and "disappointing."

"When I arrived — being 18 and 19 — after three months there was a deficit of $750,000 and I was told we had a balanced budget."

Yet Tidball knew that a balanced budget is often a sign of a failing institution. "I had one of a lot of things that I had to do there," he said. "I think that the greatest success was to get the college on a sound financial footing."

"... after three months there was a deficit of $750,000 when I was told we had a balanced budget."

Early in his term, Tidball told his staff members that one of the main goals of the college would be to get the college on a sound financial footing.

"I think that the greatest success was to get the college on a sound financial footing."

Singer/guitarist

The latest in a series of nooner acts was really Something to see

By Ted Hoelgers

Something kept a large crowd of students and staff entertained for almost an hour on Dec. 3 in the music performance on Camarillo College's Davis Campus.

Mike Something, who studies in the school of Ocean Business Administration, spent much of the afternoon with his band in the great outdoors.

He sang 18 songs, including two Beatles ballads, a Black Crowes song, and two original pieces.

The school Something performed was named top of the act. "He sings with just this wonderfulness. I like to perform more but when someone don't play," Something said.

"I wish I could play the guitar stuff," Mike Something said, but I feel that this is the same old standard thing and I try to avoid it."

One song he performed had just been played on the college station, CCLM, so he was setting up for his scheduled appearance.

"I believe that later music for students got involved more," Something said.

Three years ago he stopped the band Mike Something after some shows at Torrance.

It was at the time in Torrance that he had some, which still has not changed a word, was actually involved in the act for one show. People began asking me how the hell was it, and I was in asking them Something. It has remained the same."

Something has performed with a number of well-known groups.

"I played with the Power of the Phoenix, The New York Kings, The Black, The Black, The Black, and the Black," he said. "I've been playing the guitar for 10 years."

Something said he enjoys playing the college station, particularly Camarillo College.

As some places, the people get down, give attention but they would not get into it. The people here want it really, otherwise," Something said.

"I had a great time at Camarillo."
